

Libraries Get Book On 'Smog'

Copies of a 60-page booklet outlining Supervisor Kenneth Hahn's fight against air pollution caused by automobiles have been placed in all city and community libraries of the Los Angeles County Public Library System, according to County Librarian William S. Geller.

The publication contains the text of correspondence between Hahn and the presidents of the "big three" automobile manufacturers during a 13-year period, beginning in February, 1953. Hahn has written letters each year to the chief executives of Ford Motor Co., General Motors Corp., and Chrysler Corp., emphasizing the auto manufacturing industry's obligation to meet its rightful responsibility in controlling air pollution from automobiles.

In a preface to the booklet, Hahn points out that since he began his correspondence with the motor vehicle industry "the number of motor vehicles in Los Angeles County has increased from two million to nearly four million, with California having a total registration of 10,629,227 vehicles."

HE CONTINUED that "some progress has been made in equipping new cars with smog control devices. Yet, the air in our nation's major cities is still being polluted by tons of dangerous and foul fumes from used motor vehicles, and I feel the industry which creates the problem should help solve it."

"The used motor vehicle is the only known major source of air pollution for which control devices are not available to the public. There will be no relief from smog and air pollution for the people of Los Angeles County and California until the automobile industry turns its attention from higher horsepower and fancier styling to meeting its responsibility to the public health."

"Advanced science and technology have sent men into orbit and enabled them to walk in the skies. Each new day brings new progress. Yet, the automobile industry, which includes some of the finest scientific and engineering brains in the nation, has not solved the problem of air pollution caused by the used motor vehicle," Supervisor Hahn's preface concluded.

THE BOOKLET also contains copies of correspondence between the Supervisor and President Johnson and Vice President Humphrey.

County Librarian Geller stated that he considered the publication an important and significant document, which will be of interest and value to all persons who are concerned with the problems of air pollution.

"This is an example of contemporary history which affects the lives, comfort and welfare of all persons living in the metropolitan area. The entire subject field of man's changing environment including air pollution, water pollution, soil erosion and similar problems is becoming critical. This publication on air pollution - factual and objective - is a valuable addition to our collections," Geller said.
